EY Parthenon Global –Director, Strategy & Transaction

(Commercial and GTM Strategy, Transactions and Transformations)

Commercial and GTM Strategy

- Transformed GTM and sales strategy for a global MedTech client's hardware and digital business by redefining go-to-market model, sales structure, and incentive design—driving 3–5% incremental revenue growth and stronger commercial alignment
- Designed innovative business models (e.g., subscription-based, Solution-as-a-Service) for global top 20 MedTech companies to transition from traditional capital and volume-driven models—resulting in new offerings such as 'Pay per use' that now contribute ~10% of total company revenue
- Led commercial strategy and GTM design for a MedTech client's new robotics system launch—integrating competitor intelligence, customer insights, and value proposition development to enable a differentiated and scalable market entry

Transactions (M&A)

- Identified ~$100M+ in synergies across 6+ Payer and PBM (Pharmacy Benefit Managers) transactions by evaluating pharmacy service models, PBM switching benefits, and class-of-trade pricing advantages
- Designed Day 1 commercial operating model for a $3B business separation—ensuring continuity, seamless customer experience, and operational readiness across sales, marketing, and support functions
- Optimized sales force deployment for one of the largest transactions in the consumer sector—achieving 100% placement across two new entities. Also developed a reusable EY sales deployment tool, generating $1M in revenue over two years across multiple clients
